The public campaign for two million dollars for the College's new Science Building really got off the ground on Monday, April 6, when a rally and reception was held by the Alumni in the COTC Mess.

Fred McCaffrey, President of the Alumni, chaired the business end of the rally, introducing Father Rector and Alex J. Grant, chairman of the Alumni Section of the Campaign.

Speaking to the Alumni workers, Father Rector outlined the growth of the College over the years, pointing to a 568 per cent increase in enrolment in the past 20 years — from 135 students in 1938 to 902 in the present year.

"We are now entering upon the threshold of a very important development in your College," Father Lahey told the workers, "and it is up to each and every one of you to see that spirit of Loyola, your College, is fostered and engendered".

Father Lahey said it was the duty of the Alumni to safeguard the future for their children by seeing that proper education facilities are available at the proper time, and pointed out that Loyola was the only English-speaking college available to the Catholic students in the province of Quebec.

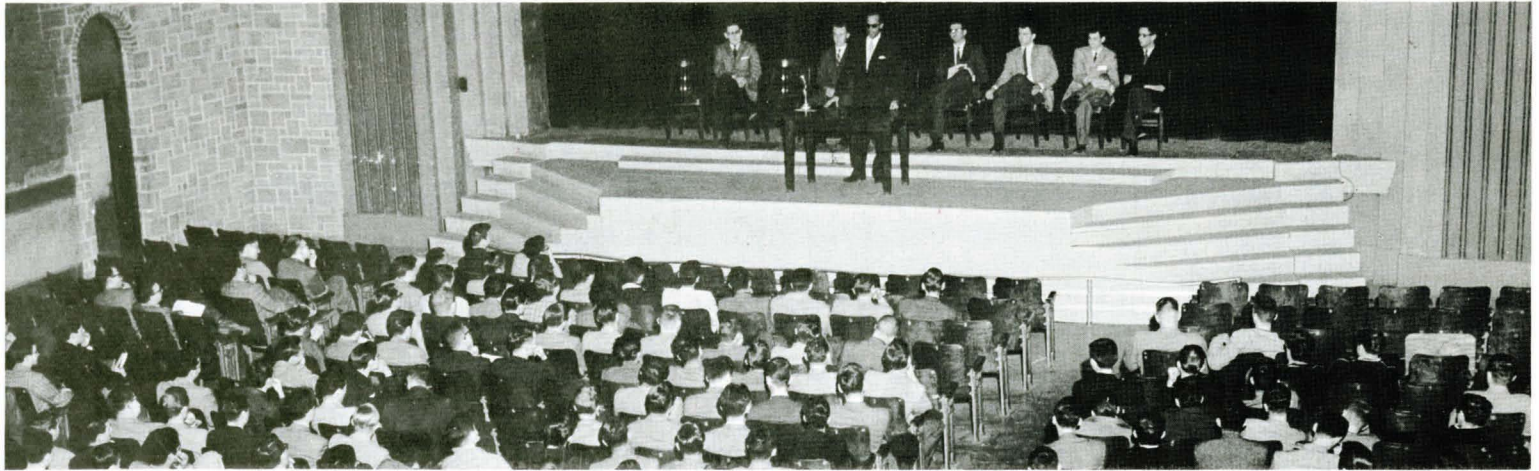

The Rector said the drive for funds was being met with good response from corporations and other friends of the College, "but it is up to you as graduates of Loyola to get out and put our campaign across."

Mr. Grant, along with James Carnie of the G.A. Brakeley company which is administering the campaign, outlined the organizational work and progress of the drive as well as instructing the workers on their duties and methods of canvassing.

Workers were then handed their working kits and lists of prospects and the show was on the road.

STUDENTS GET BEHIND CAMPAIGN

Charles G. Pare, right, general chairman of Loyola College's Campaign for $2,000,000 for a new Science Building, discusses the drive with John Ganley, president of the CSR, prior to the Student Rally held in the College Auditorium on Wednesday, April 1.

Student leaders listen intently as Charles G. Pare, general chairman of Loyola's campaign for $2,000,000, outlines general purpose of the drive and reasons why students should go all out to support the campaign. On the platform with Mr. Pare are, from left, John La Traverse, treasurer of the CSR, John Ganley, president of the CSR, Tony Parr, past president CSR, Mike Gibbons, chairman of the students committee of the Loyola Development Program, and Louis Delvoie, vice president of the CSR.

Present-day students of Loyola are going all-out to ensure that their successors are going to have bigger and better educational facilities to prepare themselves for the workaday world.

In a jam-packed rally at the College Auditorium early in April, the students began a drive for funds for their contribution to Loyola's $2,000,000 campaign for a new Science Building.

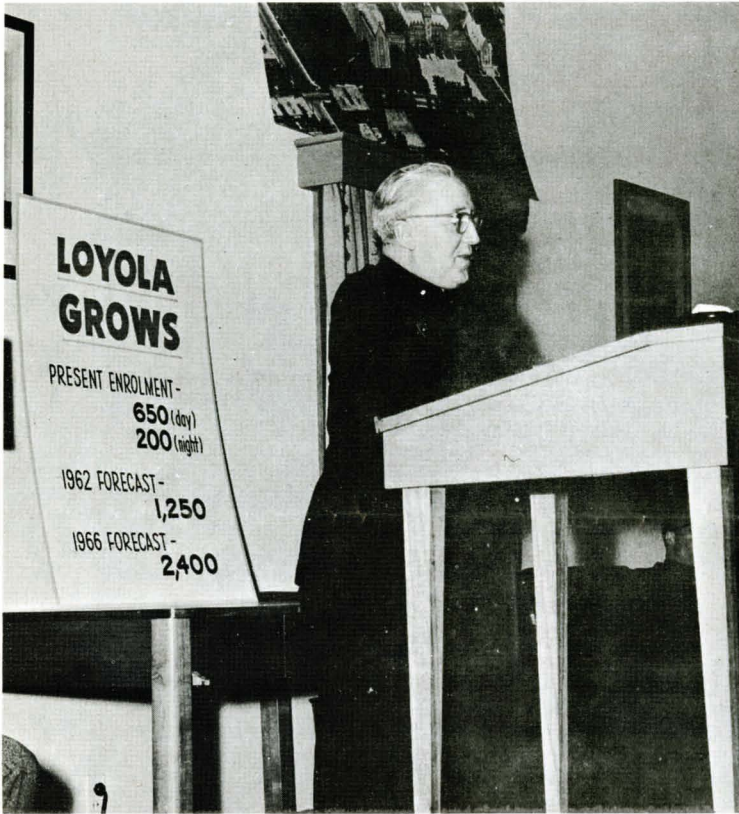

Led by John Ganley, president of the CSR, Mike Gibbons, chairman of the students' committee of the Loyola Development Program, and Tony Parr, past president of the CSR, the students have set up an organization to canvass every member of the student body for a pledge. Cards have been distributed to all students and they have been given until June 30 to return the cards with their pledges for Loyola's future development.

Charles G. Pare, general chairman of the Campaign, spoke to the Auditorium Rally, explaining the present needs and the long-range program for Loyola Development which also calls for a new library, men's residence and faculty building.

Mr. Pare also outlined for the students, the great amount of time and energy the Alumni, Parishes, businessmen and others are putting into this campaign to ensure the English-speaking Catholic youth of Quebec get the proper facilities for their higher education.
